

COUNCIL ON
FOREIGN RELATIONS, INC.

NOVEMBER FIRST

1922

PURPOSE

THE Council on Foreign Relations aims to provide a continuous conference on the international aspects of America's political, economic and financial problems. Its membership, made up of men of many professions, is limited in number, as a large body would be unwieldy and freedom in discussion would be lost.

At the Council's round-table meetings and dinners foreign guests are entertained, and the attitude which the United States might properly assume toward the problems they raise is discussed. The Council is not a trade organization nor has it any connection with any political party. It simply is a group of men concerned in spreading a knowledge of international relations and, in particular, in developing a reasoned American foreign policy.

In addition to holding regular meetings, the Council on Foreign Relations publishes occasional bulletins and has recently founded a quarterly review, FOREIGN AFFAIRS, under the editorship of Dr. Archibald Cary Coolidge, of Harvard University. FOREIGN AFFAIRS, a non-partisan medium for the discussion of international problems, has been warmly welcomed both here and abroad. The Council feels that it is performing an important public service in making possible the publication of an authoritative review of this nature.
